24 Hours In Ancient Rome is a series of informed, and engaging pen portraits of individual Romans, one for each hour of the day, that link together to create a loose narrative. Interspersed with extracts from contemporaneous literature, letters and graffiti that highlight the research behind the story, it always feels entirely credible but at the same time it has the colour and pace of fiction.

24 Hours in Ancient Rome - Michael O'Mara Books

Walk a day in a Roman's sandals. What was it like to live in one of the ancient world's most powerful and bustling cities - one that was eight times more densely populated than modern day New York? In this entertaining and enlightening guide, bestselling historian Philip Matyszak introduces us to the...

Dr Philip Matyszak has a doctorate in Roman history from St John's College, Oxford, and is the author of a number of acclaimed books on the ancient world, including 24 Hours in Ancient Athens and 24 Hours in Ancient Rome, published by Michael O'Mara Books, which have been translated into fourteen languages. He currently works as a tutor for Madingley Hall Institute of Continuing Education at the University of Cambridge, teaching a course on Ancient Rome.

by Felix the Fox (Assaph Mehr) on November 28, 2017 I came across Matyszak's 24 Hours in Ancient Rome: A Day in the Life of the People Who Lived There via a recommendation by Alison Morton (of Nova Roma fame). It looked right up my alley, so I jumped straight into it. Very glad I did!

So when my eye fell upon Philip Matyszak's 24 Hours in Ancient Rome, and its claim to introduce readers to the real Ancient Rome by examining the lives of ordinary people, I decided it was high time to update my education. And the lovely artwork on the front cover made this book all the more appealing.

24 Hours in Ancient Rome: A Day in the Life of the People ...

The daytime canonical hours of the Catholic Church take their names from the Roman clock: the prime, terce, sext and none (liturgy) occur during the first (prima) - 6am, third (tertia) - 9am, sixth (sexta) - 12pm, and ninth (nona) = 3pm, hours of the day. The English term noon is also derived from the ninth hour.

Although billed as 24 hours in the life of Ancient Rome it is really 24 vignettes with some tenuous handovers to link the hours. The activity described within each chapter is not necessarily exclusive to that hour and some chapters seem to be "fillers" such that the full 24 hours are covered.

24 Hours in Rome: How to Spend a Delightful Day in Rome

An interesting concept of 24 people going about their daily business in ancient Rome for one hour during a particular time of day. From Nightwatchman to baker, slave, schoolboy and teacher etc. This is a must for history buffs with plenty of quotes from people at the time who witnessed these events and even a few answers for pub quiz fans.
