Argumentative Essay On The Death Penalty. The focus of the death penalty tends to be the execution of an individual who committed horrible crimes and must pay for their actions; however, what tends to be looked over and quite frankly ignored is the percentage of lives who were lost by execution but was completely innocent.

As you can see, the author of the argumentative essay about the death penalty above considers capital punishment to be an irrational and useless tool of the justice system. The death penalty doesn't have any impact on the number of crimes and causes serious legal and moral issues.

Contemporary states have gone from an inordinate extension of the death penalty to an exceptional, scarce and infrequent application of the death penalty. In this new configuration the democratic principles of humanity, equality, fraternity and the monitoring of Human Rights in contemporary society have influenced.

The death penalty is the punishment of execution, carried out legally against an individual convicted of a capital crime. Those who support the death penalty might argue that it is just, and deters further murders, while others against it may argue that it is inhumane and it doesn't solve any core problems in that person's life.

Ineffectiveness of Death Penalty Death penalty as a means of punishing crime and discouraging wrong behaviour has suffered opposition from various fronts. Religious leaders argue that it is morally wrong to take someone's life while liberal thinkers claim that there are better ways to punish wrong behaviour other than the death penalty.
