Dune buggies are usually built from a VW beetle chassis or from scratch. If you are taking the VW donor approach, we suggest starting with one of the books oriented toward the bug chassis along side a basic book on vehicle handling (University level vehicle dynamics isn't suggested unless you intend to race professionally)

A dune buggy is a lightweight wheeler. Do not put it through too steep a terrain. Chances are vivid of the buggy enduring a roll over. Not good, for the buggy's esthetics go flub in a wink. As for the rider's well-being, it is an absolute disaster. If your visibility is hampered while riding the buggy on a terrain, slow down.

The Edge Products provides plans and parts for a range of dune buggy or sandrail type vehicles. Over 25 years experience we don't just design, but build too.
