I wish it was something I could wake up from, but I couldn't escape it. Not even when I tried. Lachesis, one of the three fates, said there was a way to save Ellie. Out of the three conditions she set, I am only one part of that puzzle. For her tragic life to turn around, Ellie would need my support. But she would also need to feel her parent's love, and be reunited with her true love. I don't even know who that person is. Ellie has one last chance at life. How could all of this be done in a single lifetime, when it wasn't possible in a thousand? Will I see her die again? Or will the fates align to give Ellie a future less grim than the ones I witnessed? I don't know all the secrets she kept from me. I won't remember much of our past lives. Can I even save my best friend? Or is it too much to hope?

Jason's chance to make a move is now, but he's paralyzed by the fear he will ruin both his career and a partnership he values more than any he has ever had. Therapist Dr. Georgia Lukens is fascinated by the complicated relationship between Ellie and Jason, but she has other, non-detective patients with deeper problems. When a timid woman named Rachel reveals that she suspects her promiscuous and charismatic roommate Lea has been involved in the grisly murders, Georgia is put into the untenable position of deciding if this privileged information is just the ramblings of a delusional patient or something more. And little does she know that Lea has become focused on Jason Santiago. As Ellie pieces together a macabre puzzle of past and present sins, it becomes clear that madness takes many forms and...it may be too late to stop her partner from becoming the next victim.
