Gramscis Common Sense Inequality And Gramsci's Common Sense: Inequality and Its Narratives

The new focus on inequality can be seen as an acknowledgement, even if only an implicit one, of the reality of class. The chapter asks the question whether or not we might see the slogan "We are the 99%" as a form of subaltern good sense, the good sense on which Gramsci believed any political narrative had to be based if it were to offer an effective challenge to the dominant capitalist ...
