OEC - FOLEY SWANSON

I'm Not Crazy, I'm Just Not You / 978-1-857-88552-1 I'm admittedly not a big fan of the Myers-Briggs personality types model. I've seen the model employed badly, too many times, at corporate retreats that seemed to use the model to stereotype and as an excuse to avoid getting to know individuals meaningfully. Not noticing the inside of me. They just look at the clothes I wear. They don't know how I feel. They think I'm always glad, But there's something they don't know. I'm the one who's feeling sad. They think I always win, But really I always lose. They think my life is so great, But they couldn't stay one day in my shoes. You may think I'm strong.

I'm Not Different is written for every child who lives in a diverse family situation; single parent, adopted, foster care, same sex parents, etc. The message is clear for every child. It doesn't matter what your situation, for love overcomes everything. Told in rhythmic verse, the story is also beautifully illustrated by Melanie.

I'm Not There uses a nonlinear narrative, shifting between six characters in separate storylines "inspired by the music and many lives of Bob Dylan". Each character represents a different facet of Dylan's public persona: poet (Arthur Rimbaud), prophet (Jack Rollins/Father John), outlaw (Billy McCarty), fake (Woody Guthrie), "rock and roll martyr" (Jude Quinn), and "star of electricity" (Robbie Clark).

There is a large amount of overlap in the meanings but there is a small difference in emphasis. 'Not different' tends to imply that the two are identical whereas 'No different' implies parallelism rather than total congruence.

These are both ways of creating a negative statement but they work differently. Note that without the not, there are few uses for the I do construction. Both do and am act as auxiliary verbs here, but different forms of the main verb follow: Don't + base form of the verb - I don't eat cheese. I'm not + participle - I'm not eating cheese. Note there are other predicates available as well: adjectives and nouns - I'm not fond of cheese; I'm not a fan of cheese.
