Learning From Museums: Visitor Experiences And The Making ...

Active learning occurs when people stretch their minds to interact with the information and experiences at hand. In art museums, visitors are learning actively when they do such things as: formulate their own questions about works of art, reflect on their own ideas and impressions, make their own discerning judgments, construct their own interpretations, and seek their own personal connections.

Of course not. Best of all, if after reading an e-book, you buy a paper version of Learning from Museums: Visitor Experiences and the Making of Meaning. Read the book on paper - it is quite a powerful experience.

Museums have always been great tourist spots. You visit them to gain knowledge, or to spend leisure time, or just to marvel at the artifacts. And to keep visitors engaged, museums should fulfill their purpose of visit. But lately, museums have started finding it difficult to keep the visitors engaged.
