The Great Purge or the Great Terror was a campaign of political repression in the Soviet Union which occurred from 1936 to 1938. It involved a large-scale purge of the Communist Party and government officials, repression of kulaks and the Red Army leadership, widespread police surveillance, suspicion of saboteurs, counter-revolutionaries, imprisonment, and arbitrary executions. Historians estimate the total number of deaths due to Stalinist repression in 1937-38 to be between 680,000 and ...

Terror, in the sense of mass, unjust arrests, characterized the USSR during the late 1930s. But, argues Robert Thurston in this controversial book, Stalin did not intend to terrorize the country and did not need to rule by fear.

Terror's purpose was to rid Russia of any of Stalin's opponents and to force loyalty to Russia's "Man of Steel". In this essay, I will examine how the ruthless dictator used propaganda to (1) create a cult of personality and (2) to promote the 5-Year Plans; and how he used terror, in the form of the (3) NKVD and the (4) Show Trials, to remove all opponents & solidify his power.

In this official view, Stalin is seen as the great mastermind plotting every evil that befell Soviet society during his reign. When this faith is subjected to critical analysis and does not hold up - that Stalin did not plot the great famine, or the invasion by Hitler - then the official line retreats into theories of pathology or "just plain evil."
