It is here the children, led by the example of parents and elders, according to Pope Francis, "learn to communicate and to show concern for one another, and in which frictions and even conflicts have to be resolved not by force but by dialogue, respect, concern for the good of the other, mercy and forgiveness" (cf. Post-Synodal Apostolic Exhortation, Amoris Laetitia, 2016, nos.90-130).

Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue

Dialogue is an 'in' word these days—praised by those who see it as the only way forward in a pluralistic age, dismissed out of hand by others who discern in the activity no more than the devil's compromise. Raimundo Panikkar does us all a good service by describing more lucidly than most the essence of dialogue at its extreme. Consider first the title of his collection of essays.
