Tippu Tip : ivory, slavery and discovery in the scramble ...

While professing loyalty to the sultan of Zanzibar, Tippu Tip exercised considerable personal authority in East Africa's Great Lakes region for many years, assisting several European explorers. Laing shows that while he owned and used slaves in his trading caravans, he was primarily interested in the ivory trade, his most profitable activity.

Tippu Tip was chiefly an ivory trader, who pioneered for new sources through present-day Tanzania into the Congo basin. Slavery is part of his story, because Arab traders of the time used slaves as porters and sold slaves through the market in Zanzibar to work locally in plantations and beyond in the Gulf and Persia.

The most renowned Arab trader was Tippu Tip (Hemedi bin Muhammad el Marjebi), born in Zanzibar, who at 18 began slave and ivory trading between the interior and coastal towns, and by 1880 he had built a large commercial empire between the Upper Congo, Lake Tanganyika and Bagamoyo on the coast, where the slaves were shipped-off to Zanzibar for sale to foreign merchants. In East Africa all the main routes, such as the above, lay in Tanganyika: a route in the North passed through Karagwe and ...
